INDIAN GAMES

The Indians liked to play games. The game now known as "lacrosse" was first played by the Indians. They also liked sledding, dancing, tug-of-war, wrestling, and javelin-throwing.

Here's an Indian game that you can play. It is a stick-in-the-hoop game played by the Cheyenne Indians. One or more people can play.

1. Tie the ends of a 3-foot rope or string together to form a hoop.

2. Find 4 sticks about 10 inches long.

3. Place the hoop on the ground, and walk 2 paces away from it.

4. With your back to the hoop, toss each of the sticks over your shoulder toward the hoop.

5. See how many sticks you can get inside the hoop. If you are playing with friends, the person with the most sticks in the hoop wins the game.
